

Projects

You're self-motivated and love a challenge.

You throw yourself into projects and like any opportunity to learn new skills or use the ones you already have.

People

It's the prospect of spending time with others and building relationships that motivates you.

Praise

You thrive on praise and other people's approval. You need to know that others recognise and respect the work you are doing.

Prizes

You are motivated primarily by financial incentives or other tangible rewards.

Prestige

You like to give the impression of being an important and respected person, even if your actual power/prizes do not match this view of you.

Power

You want to do well so you reach positions of influence, where you have a say in important decisions or more control over your own life.